

A Partnership to Tackle the Affordable Housing Crisis

A joint venture has been established between the Low Income Investment Fund (LIIF), a national nonprofit financial institution with $900 million in assets under management, Stewards of Affordable Housing for the Future (SAHF), a nonprofit collaborative of thirteen affordable housing providers who own 147,500 rental homes, and National Affordable Housing Trust (NAHT), a nonprofit low-income housing tax credit syndicator with over $1 billion in assets under management.

Access to safe, affordable housing is one of the most powerful social determinants of health and in an effort to provide access to safe, affordable housing for all, we will work to raise $1 billion over the first five years of the partnership to build, protect and preserve approximately 10,000 affordable homes across the country. Our innovative approach will elevate tenant voices and community needs when it comes to creating new developments, generating greater social impact—as well as financial return—for investors.

Our Offerings

Together we will serve as a nimble alliance, offering a highly-coordinated source of both debt and equity, combined with savvy technical assistance, to advance equitable outcomes for residents and communities.

This endeavor builds on our long-standing partnership and commitment to a shared mission. For example, LIIF and NAHT partnered to launch the Fund to Preserve Affordable Communities (FPAC), a $100 million funding collaborative that provides acquisition financing to SAHF members. More recently, NAHT and SAHF launched the Health & Housing Fund UnitedHealth Group as a strategy for addressing health challenges with affordable housing. Through our new joint venture, we will scale and expand these solutions, leveraging our shared experience and knowledge to continue to support developers responding to the needs of communities with a specific focus on supporting communities of color.

Our partnership supports the long-term sustainability and growth of a mission-first syndicator and mission-driven affordable housing developers. This work and approach has never been more important given the convergence of crises facing our nation today. Together, we are deeply committed to paving the way for more quality, safe affordable housing in equitable, opportunity-rich communities across the country. This partnership received the generous support of the SeaChange-Lodestar Fund for Nonprofit Collaboration.
